2008 Annual Report

From the President and Executive Director

2008 was both a challenging and exciting time for Historic Huguenot Street. Challenging because of the financial constraints we are all experiencing, but exciting because of the important gains we have made. There are three areas where HHS has excelled in the past few years. We have contributed toward the vitality of the Street through the new logo, branding, publications, newsletter, website, events, and improved site aesthetics. Secondly, we have renewed connections and expanded our support base by attracting new donors, greater attendance, increased publicity, and stronger community relations. Finally, we completed the Jean Hasbrouck House project. This was largest fundraising and restoration project ever undertaken at HHS -- a project that, significantly, was supported by all of our family associations and by a wide cross-section of our members and friends.

Like everyone, of course, we are responding to the current economic downturn and taking action to minimize risk in this uncertain climate. We have scaled back our work plans and reduced expenses. We have made greater use of interns and volunteers, and staff in all departments have stepped up to provide greater support for our revenue-generating activities, including grant writing, special events, and tours. All programs are being closely evaluated and re-evaluated for their ability to drive revenue and visitation.

While we are minimizing our expenses as much as possible we also recognize that our best chance for success lies in bold action. Historic Huguenot Street stands as a symbol of continuity, perseverance, and strength, and we expect that local and regional visitation will grow in 2009 as people seek entertainment and recreation closer to home, particularly in this significant Quadricentennial year. We thank you for your help in reaching these goals.

Mary Etta Schneider, President

Eric J. Roth, Executive Director

Summary of Accomplishments

Historic Preservation

The Reopening of the Jean Hasbrouck House was the crowning achievement of 2008. The house opened on time and within budget. This project was an important example of our dedication to quality preservation and restoration.

Archaeological investigations at the Bevier-Elting and Freer Houses allowed for some immediate foundation repairs and set the stage for future regrading to assist with long-standing moisture issues.

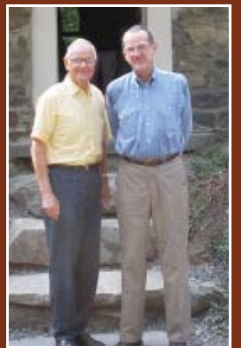

At Locust Lawn, the cellar windows of the Josiah Hasbrouck House were restored and the restoration of the Terwilliger House porch began.

The North wall of the Abraham Hasbrouck House was repointed. This project was completed in cooperation with the Hasbrouck Family Association.

The Archaeology Field School of the State University of New York at New Paltz (SUNY) returned to the Street again in the summer. Digging continued on the lawn between the Deyo and Bevier-Elting Houses. A picture of earlier houses or what was perhaps a palisade built to protect the village may be beginning to emerge. This finding, along with 2007 discovery to the north of the DuBois Fort of an early European-style pit house with an attached barn, is changing our understanding of the earliest years of this community.

The Remaking of an Icon: The Jean Hasbrouck House

In 2008, the Jean Hasbrouck House reopened after a five-year restoration project, the scope of which was unprecedented for Historic Huguenot Street. The failing north wall was rebuilt, reproduction Dutch-style casement windows were installed and the interior was restored. The project was capped off in late July with a celebration attended by over 300 individuals and a reopening party for family, friends and supporters of the restoration.

The Historic Structure Report for the Bevier-Elting House continued. Some interesting aspects of the house's later history, including the cottage industries that operated in the house in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, have been uncovered. The report will be completed in 2009.

The Craig House, which houses the main office, was scraped and repainted during the summer. The same historically appropriate colors were used.

The first stage of the DuBois Fort re-roofing project commenced in the fall.

This was the first step in making the site accessible year-round and moving away from both the practice and perception that HHS is only open May through October.

In 2008, realizing that special programs are key to reach new individuals and encourage repeat visitation, an expanded calendar of events was introduced. This included activities designed to appeal to several distinct populations. New programs included Wickets and Wine; A Peek Into the Archives; several talks; and holiday programs, including the popular Vintage Photos with Santa in the Freer House.

Successful on-going programs such as Haunted Huguenot Street and Archaeology Camps were improved. "First person" re-enactments, including a moving rendition of Jenny LeFevre sharing her grief over the death of her brother Josiah in the Civil War, were added to Haunted Huguenot Street. To complement this program, which is for adults, HHS added a Haunted Hunt just prior to Halloween. The event drew over 200 children and their parents.

Hasbrouck and DuBois Family Associations

The HFA and the DBFA are affiliated family associations. In 2008, they were the largest donors to HHS. The HFA funded several projects in the Abraham and Jean Hasbrouck Houses, as well as offering funds for scholarships and selected programs. The DBFA contributed significantly to the DuBois Fort Roof Project and to the Before Hudson exhibit.

Collection Donations and Acquisitions

Collecting activity in 2008 was brisk. The Library received a very generous gift of 178 books and periodicals from the private collection of Martin Lodge, retired history professor from the State University of New York at New Paltz. Titles pertain to colonial religion, colonial New York, local history and church histories.

Our Archives is richer for the addition of a 1777 French/English dictionary published by Abel Boyer (1667-1729) an important early French-English lexicographer (and, incidentally, of Huguenot extraction) whose dictionary remained in print until the mid 19th century. This volume is inscribed “Joseph Bevier his Book.” The addition of this early reference book to our collection is important. The Archives received interesting photographs related to local families; Eltings, Stillwells, Chadeaynes, and Gerows. Also donated were papers pertaining to the family of Peter Deyo. A 17th century Dutch Bible and a 19th century Bible, were also donated this year, increasing our sizable holding of family Bibles.

Boyer's 1777 French English Dictionary

The objects collection was strengthened by the addition of several sewing-related donations (vintage sewing machines, and a silver thimble) inspired by the Notion to Sew exhibit. Several objects that will help to interpret rooms in the Deyo and Freer houses — a brass picture frame, framed fashion prints, porcelain vase, ornate kerosene lamp, vintage electric mixer and a silver flask owned by Abraham Deyo Broadhead, were acquired this year. Our large collection of domestic and bedding textiles was increased with the addition of a number of quilts and quilt tops including a very early quilt dated 1808 (and marked “S.R.”). This piece may be the earliest quilt in our collection. It is in very fragile condition and cannot be exhibited. Nevertheless, it is an important research textile. The pieced quilt came from a house in Tuthilltown, New York with possible Bevier history. Along with quilts, HHS acquired several woven coverlets, “homespun” blankets and sheets, vintage 20th century kitchen and bed textiles and a 19th century candlewick table cover.
